DIOGEN is seeking for human being

Between shops and offices

Between shops and offices
suddenly this

a crowd of kids and adults
as usual with golden light around their faces and their hands as usual on their way to thousand places

a crowd of kids and adults
a crowd of outdoors love in the wind
between shops and offices
suddenly this

An empty place

you should have come and have said
I like you very much

I hate the chair you should have sat in

I am afraid my hatred for that chair
is about to kill me

Once upon a time

Once upon a time there was a city in the night with millions of locked doors.
Millions of inhabitants disappeared into millions of locked rooms.
Did they all take me for a thief?

Once upon a time my unconscious had shut its gates.
It wanted to be left in peace.
Everything else about me walked around restlessly circling the closed space.
Sighing, twisting, turning.

And so did you.

English: (Robyn Ianssen)

Double language

the lovers touched each other with their faces or was it their brains or was it their eyesockets or was it their wings or was it with their warmth they touched each other with their bodies outwardly and their songs inwardly

- English (Anne Born)

Once upon a time

Once upon a time the grown ups woke me from an afternoon sleep in late August.

I was lifted up from the bed.
Then put down.
They wanted to see if I could stand alone.

They had forgotten you don't do that sort of thing on a globe of clover flowers.
You crawl around on your four wings and fly.

Here I am

hugging the air with you in it when I am alone
